138th Commencement Ceremonies

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

Dear Graduates,

You've made it! Today we celebrate your accomplishments.

Each year, Commencement marks a major milestone for our graduates. Years of hard work, grit, and determination have led you to this moment — a day to relish with family and friends in your successes. You've taken a major step in your academic career, professional development, and in life's journey.

A.J. Drexel, the founder of our great University, said, "An education should not only be good, but good for something." You have proven time and again that you are up for this challenge. While a student at Drexel, you've exceeded all expectations of our rigorous curriculum, pushed the boundaries of research and innovation, proven your commitment to civic engagement in Philadelphia, and did the real work in the real world. Now, you enter your next chapter with an even greater aptitude and awareness to make a major impact on society.

No one scales great heights of achievement alone. In congratulating you, I salute Drexel's outstanding faculty and professional staff and your personal support systems who have helped you not only meet, but exceed, high expectations. Continue to call on these cheerleaders for references, counsel and friendship. Remember: You don't ever need to go it alone.

As a proud University alumnus and longtime trustee, I've seen firsthand the power of the Drexel network. Make the most of this strong, global community of alumni. Be intentional about staying in touch with your classmates, join our professional development communities, update the Drexel Magazine on your milestones, and consider giving back as a mentor, adviser or recruiter of prospective Dragons. Wear your Drexel gear with pride and remember to visit campus as often as you can.

What you have achieved at Drexel, and the way it's been achieved — with integrity and respect for others — fills me with hope for the future. Our collective tomorrow is extremely bright because of you. I wish you a life full of continued joy, good health, and much success.

Warm regards,

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read "D. O'Brien", with a stylized flourish at the end.

Denis O'Brien
